It was the third film produced by Paramount Pictures, the second starring Redford. The film is a remake of the 1957 film of the same name. Plot In Paris, a wealthy woman offers to pay for her ex-husband's new marriage to have a lavish wedding, but if her daughter, Jill (MacGraw), marries him, she will inherit everything, leaving her father's company a near-bankrupt corporation and her ex-husband almost penniless. Jill's own fiancé, Billy (Redford), a good-hearted and likable drifter, is also against the marriage, telling her, "I don't want you to marry that pig!" At the last minute, Jill and Billy are convinced by her friend Emily (Holly Near) to go to New York and stay at the a1d647c40b
